Splish Splash Easter Fun!

The Sunday of April 4 proved to be a fantastic opportunity for Tropicana members to enjoy quality time with their kids as they came together for some Easter fun by the newly-reopened swimming pool, having undergone a timely upgrade during the MCO 2.0.

The kids were a bunch of happy campers indeed as they frolicked in the pool with their friends, and even more thrilled to be surprised with an Easter bunny colouring pack, along with yummy candies.

Foreseeing heavy evening showers, a pool canopy was added to provide shelter, along with additional ceiling fans for members' comfort and weatherproof power points at each column for their convenience.

Lions Club Do

Excitement was clearly in the air on March 20 as Tropicana played host to members of Lions Club of Damansara KL, who came together for a Cheque Presentation Ceremony, the first event to take place on club grounds since the MCO 2.0 was eased.

Held at Greens III, the Saturday afternoon event went on without a hitch, with guests enjoying each other's company whilst relishing lunch and refreshments – all amidst strictly implemented SOPs.

Imran & His Feathered Friends

Bird enthusiast and budding photographer Imran Amir fuels his passions at Tropicana

Oprah Winfrey once said, "Follow your passion; it will lead you to your purpose." And teenager Imran Amir has certainly found his, coupling his fascination for birds with a keen interest in photography, eager to grow his collection having captured over 111 species of birds on camera across the sprawling grounds of Tropicana Golf & Country Resort.

The 14-year-old uncovered his passion for birds two years ago, amplified at the onset of the global pandemic; having had to remain house-bound, the bored youngster rummaged through some cupboards and stumbled upon an old Nikon camera belonging to his mother. Though at the time Imran didn't know how to properly work the camera, he was determined to put it to good use, fuelled by his curiosity about wondrous winged creatures hiding in trees and dominating the skies.

Now, Imran isn't just your usual, run-of-the-mill teenager, having been diagnosed when he was just 16 months old with Met (H) Type 1, an ultra rare blood disorder affecting one in one million people. As with almost if not all rare medical diseases, there is scant information on how to diagnose, treat and manage it. The medical world states that his condition is untreatable leaving most things to trial and error.

Growing up, he faced a series of challenges in day-to-day life due to the disorder; he had trouble holding his head up and had various oro-motor, eye-hand coordination, balance and cognitive challenges. He was also extremely accident prone. Aside from various types of therapies, his mother spent time moving him from one kindergarten to another, thinking the more expensive the kindergarten, the better the care would be for him. First-hand experience, however, completely obliterated that pre-conceived notion.

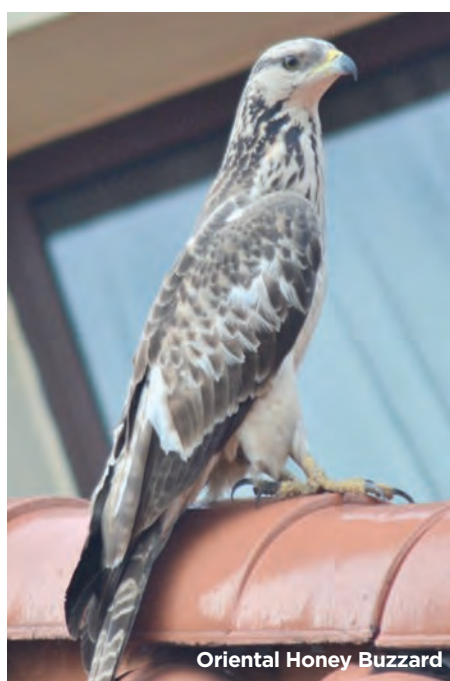

As a toddler, Imran would run a toy car over every page turned on a book, walk 2.5km daily and have an almost impossible reservoir of energy that

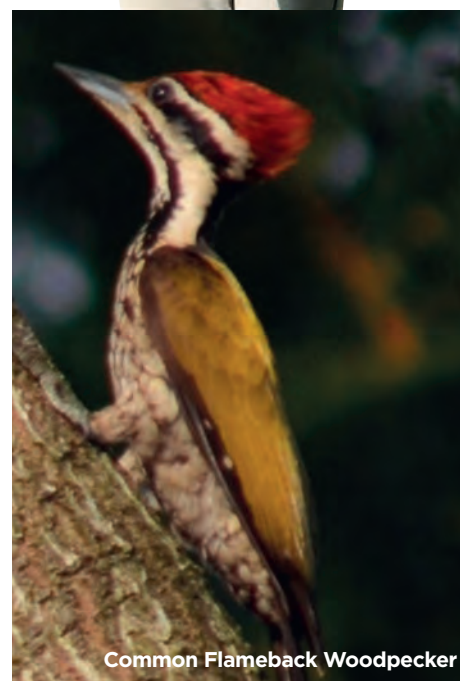

Brahminy Kite

Blue Tailed Bee Eater

Oriental Honey Buzzard

Common Flameback Woodpecker

tired everyone out. He would run hither and thither from one end of the room to another for hours. There were traumatic events where he tried to jump out of a bedroom window without having an inkling of the consequence! What were once peaceful lunches, dinners, grocery shopping became impossible outings for Imran's parents, who instead had to watch him 24/7 to keep him safe and out of harm's way.

Around the time Imran turned 9, his mother was looking for ways to best keep him engaged and content in his passion for birds. She noticed that swimming and nature calmed his nervous system tremendously. Greenery provided much needed clean air as opposed to urban settings, while devices had the opposite effect, often setting him off into a state of hyperactivity and discontentment.

Being around nature clearly was key; it helped Imran function at a healthy optimum level that would be rejuvenating for him and those who looked after him.

Imran would notice things that other people would not, like a crack in the cement floor or a torn leaf. He would point it out and would want to figure out the cause. As those around him began to understand how his mind worked, life with Imran became a lot less strenuous. Through his keen interest in birds around Tropicana, he has found that they play important roles in biodiversity levels in specific areas.

Eager to learn more about nature, Imran has joined various practical outdoor activities in the jungle and attended theoretical courses run by local universities. University Malaya's Rimba Ilmu Department provided several university-level nature courses for the public that covered almost all components of nature. Through which Imran learnt how to record bird counts fit for scientific studies. In tandem with this course, he became a member of the Budding Birdies Group that gathered people to various localities to bird-watch. Imran has since become one of the best spotters, and today he can identify a bird simply by hearing its call.

Media Invite: Santapan 29 Malam

Tropicana's legendary Santapan 29 Malam 'Selera Muhibbah' Buffet returns this year after a long wait.

On the first day of Ramadan, April 13, the club invited special guests comprising members of the media, along with a select group of social media influencers, to experience the highly-anticipated Ramadan buffet, available till May 12 at The Palm Coffee House, featuring over 250 dishes.

"For over 20 years, Tropicana has consistently redefined the art of living, dining, and serving – improving our legendary Ramadhan buffet that has become a household name," said Tropicana managing director Peter Kuan. "Covid-19 may have left a void among buffet-lovers but thanks to 'new normal-friendly' concepts, we are bringing back our Santapan 29 Malam Buffet to satisfy buffet cravings while sticking to social distancing measures."

The dizzying array of delicacies comprised local favourites as well as house specialties such as the ubiquitous Lemang, cooked over wood fires and served with Chicken Rendang, Roti Canai, Bubur Lambuk, Roasted Lamb and Satay. The 20 live cooking stations, meanwhile, had the Tropicana chefs showing off their skills as they prepared Malaysian and western favourites such as aneka goreng, fried noodles and pizza. This year's offerings also included a range of Thai specialties, including Yam Neua Beef Salad, Tom Yum Gai and Som Tam Thai.

Of course, for those with a sweet tooth, there were various desserts to choose from, including local kuih, cakes, ABC and Cendol – as well as luscious, creamy bubur such as Bubur Cha-Cha and Bubur Pulut Hitam.

Salam Aidil Fitri from The Management

We, the management of Tropicana, would like to wish all our valued Muslim members Selamat Hari Raya Aidil Fitri!

Let us all enjoy the glorious, auspicious month of Syawal as we celebrate each other and all of life's blessings. And folks, remember to stay safe out there!

A Helping Hand

As done in the previous months, Tropicana pushes on with efforts to lend a hand to those severely affected by the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic by providing meals to various charitable homes ahead of the festive season, embracing the essence and spirit of Ramadan and Hari Raya.

This time around, under the banner of the Tropicana Foundation, we provided daily lunches and dinners to no less than 15 homes in the Klang Valley between March 19 and April 10.

Not only do these endeavours help spread some cheer and positivity to the less fortunate, but they also underline Tropicana Foundation's passion of giving back to society. Help us to help them by purchasing yummy TGCR Homemade Cookies, baked with love ... and for an absolutely worthy cause! All profits go to the Tropicana Foundation to help fund its charitable activities.
